5. Link of the Month: Technical Document to the Proposed Revisions to the Delaware Sediment & Stormwater Regulations

A draft version of the Technical Document to the proposed revisions to the Delaware Sediment & Stormwater Regulations has been posted on the DNREC Website since September 2010. This “document” is a compendium of various technical documents that will supplement the regulations. It is seen as a “living document” that can be quickly updated as necessary without going through the lengthy process required for revisions to the regulations themselves. In keeping with this goal, it is also anticipated that it will be delivered as an on-line hypertext document rather than as a traditional printed document. The Technical Document is arranged in 5 articles covering specific topics. Several new appendices have been added recently. The full draft Technical Document can be viewed at:
